Supplementary Framework for Assessing Gender Responsive Public Financial Management

The PEFA supplementary framework for assessing gender responsive public financial management (GRPFM) is a set of nine indicators that measure the degree to which a country's PFM systems address the government's goals with regard to acknowledging different needs of men and women, and different subgroups of these categories, and promoting gender equality. The framework can be applied at both national and subnational levels.

Click on the indicators below to learn more about what each of them measures.
